

Hangr: shop demo package

Three parts: the 5-minute demo script, the sit-down questions, and a first target list of local dry cleaners.
Live app: hangr-web-production-rz6m6f.laravel.cloud

Part 1. Demo script (about 5 minutes)

Before you walk in. Ask Yehuda to reset the demo shop so it starts with six clean sample tickets. Charge the tablet. Sign in as `counter@acme.test` (demo password from Yehuda) and leave it on the Today screen. Have your own phone ready, and the 2-minute demo video on it as a backup.

Opening line. "I am helping a small team build a simple ticket and text system for dry cleaners. Can I show you something for five minutes and get your honest reaction? It is not a sales pitch."

1	Today. Show the board: due today, overdue, ready.	"This is your day on one screen."
2	New ticket. Tap 2 to 3 tiles, add a photo, type a cell number, Create.	Let the owner tap the tiles. Ask if this is faster than their way.
3	Receipt. Point at the QR code and the demo text.	Say plainly: texts are shown, not sent, in the demo.
4	Owner scans the QR with their own phone.	No app, no login. Status, ready date, photo, what they owe, your phone and hours.
5	Mark ready on the tablet.	The owner's phone flips to "Ready for pickup" within about 10 seconds. Hold the phone up for them to watch.
6	Hand over. Pick Card or Cash, tap Hand over.	Phone shows "Picked up". Pause here and ask the questions.
7	Settings. Price list and Company (hours, phone, turnaround).	Optional. Shows a typical price list is preloaded.

Say it plainly: what is real and what is not.

- Real: tickets, prices, photos, the customer page, payments recorded at pickup, each shop's data kept separate.
- Demo only: texts are recorded and shown, not sent. Card payments are recorded, not charged. Online payment, live texting, label printing and reminders for unclaimed orders come later.

Tested Oct 1, 8:42 AM: the full flow above worked end to end on a phone-size and a desktop screen.

One known rough edge: if a photo upload fails, a grey "Failed" thumbnail stays on the form. Tap the x on it and add the photo again. Do the photo step once, slowly, in front of the owner.

Part 2. Sit-down questions

Ask after the walkthrough, not before. Write what they say word for word if you can. Shop: _____

Owner: _____ Date: _____

1. How do you tag garments today, and what printer do you have?

Why we ask: Decides whether we build label printing next.

2. Would tapping one tile per garment be faster than what you do now?

Why we ask: Core bet of the intake screen.

3. Is "Received + Ready" enough, or would customers want an "In progress" text?

Why we ask: In progress is shown on the page but not texted today.

4. How long do you need photos for damage claims?

Why we ask: Sets how long we store them.

5. What do you do with orders nobody picks up?

Why we ask: Decides the unclaimed-order reminder feature.

6. How many people work the counter, and do they share one tablet?

Why we ask: Decides logins and device setup.

Close with these two. "If this worked the way you saw, would you run your counter on it?" and "What is the one thing that would stop you?"

Part 3. First target list (near Suffern, Rockland County)

Public listings only. I have not called or visited any of them, so confirm hours and that the owner works the counter before you go. Ordered by how well they fit: small, owner-run, single storefront first.

ValuClean Cleaners (try last)	59 Rte 59 Monsey; 1581 Rte 202 Pomona	(845) 232-2306. Since 1995, more than one site and a delivery route, so likely bigger than the target.

How to approach.

- Walk in on a weekday between 10 and 11 am or 2 and 4 pm. Skip lunchtime, evenings and Friday afternoon.
- Ask for the owner. Line: "I am not selling anything today. I am getting feedback on a simple ticket and text tool for dry cleaners. Five minutes?"
- Bring the tablet already signed in, plus your phone. Offer to come back if the line is long.
